[DISPATCHES TO THE OREGONIAN.]

DATES TO JULY 11.

Congressional

WASHINGTON July 11.—The Senate passed the bill to extend the time for the acceptance by the Southern States of the grants of land for the establishment of agricultural colleges.

Poland of Vermont from the judiciary committee, reported the House bill to establish a uniform system of bankruptcy with amendments ordered printed.

Clark of New Hampshire called up the bill to prescribe the mode of electing United States Senators, which provides that the Legislature next preceding the expiration of a Senatorial term, shall elect on the second Tuesday of its session by viva voce voting in each House separately and shall meet in joint session next day when if no person be found to have received a majority of the votes of both Houses or if either House shall have failed to take proceedings as required the joint assembly shall proceed to choose a person in like manner voting and rules of the votes of the two present and voting shall in declare duly elected.

Fessenden moved to strike out viva voce disagreed to. After discussion the bill passed by 24 against 15.

Nesmith of Oregon offered a resolution which was adopted asking for information concerning certain disorderly proceedings, robberies and murders on the road from the Arizona line to Carson, and directing the military committee to inquire into the closing of that route by the opposing forces.

In the House Stevens of Pennsylvania, reported back the diplomatic appropriation bill.

Davis of New York, reported back the Senate amendments to the Legislative executive and judicial appropriation bill. The amendments were generally unimportant and concurred in.

Hooper of Massachusetts from the committee on banking and currency reported a substitute for the bill amending the currency act. Ordered printed.

Alley of Massachusetts from the postal committee reported the Senate bill to encourage the construction of telegraph lines which after some debate was passed by ayes 72 noes 31. During the debate on this bill Alley of Massachusetts declined to have any amendments offered, on the ground that if the bill was sent back to the Senate at this late day it would be impossible to pass it. He therefore declined to yield to any of the numerous bills which were offered, amendments which they knew would kill it; but he did not propose to deny the privilege of discussing the measure in good faith. Proceeding with his remarks Alley said, all or nearly all the telegraph companies of the country were recently consolidated into one, which now presented a capital of $41,000 000, and was certainly the most gigantic in its unity in this country if not in the world.

The American people were subject to the dictation of that company and every one knows how much power the telegraph had over gold. This bill was not to open that company but to protect the rights of the line. Congress had a few years since granted a privilege to the Pacific Telegraph Company, but that company had not acted in good faith toward the Government. It was to charge but three dollars a message from the Missouri river to the State line of California; and it was understood that a message of ten words sent from Washington to San Francisco for four dollars, but the company exacted eight dollars for a message of ten words and refused to receive payment in the currency of the country.

Finck, of Ohio, a member of the post office committee argued against the constitutionality of the bill because it allowed private property to be used for public purposes without asking any compensation to the owners.

Hale of New York, opposed the bill on two grounds. The first was that stated by the gentleman from Ohio the soundness of whose argument could not be controverted. The second was, that under this bill the Cuban Telegraph Co for instance, and other foreign companies would enjoy its privileges while their governments refused equal privileges to American citizens. Any company might under this law extend a line beyond a marine league from the shore which other jurisdiction claims and have make connection with a foreign company chartered by a foreign government. He desired to have the bill amended in both particulars.

Alley remarked that no one had said a word against the merits of the bill. But every gentleman with whom he had conversed had been found to admit that it was a bill of great merit, and that there should be a remedy for the evil complained of. So far as the Constitutionality was concerned he had nothing to say, as he was no lawyer—but eminent lawyers in Congress with whom he had conversed, had said they believed the bill was perfectly constitutional. He had anticipated opposition to it. He understood that telegraphic agencies were at work to defeat it. He understood that the sweepers of the great telegraph monopoly had been on the floor to-day seeking the aid of members in opposition to the bill. He had no doubt it might be improved in certain points but he did not want to run the risk of sending the bill back to the Senate at this stage of the session.

Kasson of Iowa, explained he had no difficulty about the constitutional question. The difficulty with him was practical one. The bill did not reserve to the United States as it should the control of the telegraph lines, and there was nothing to prevent a perfect accord between existing companies and those to be organized under this act in regard to establishing rates of fare. He argued that the telegraph should be put in connection with the post office department at once as possible. His object was to fix the maximum rates which should be charged under the bill.

Washburne, of Illinois, explained he had no willingness to do anything to break up the present stupendous telegraphic monopoly which had become so oppressive to the people. These telegraph companies had been combining, contesting and consolidating every telegraph line in the country, and the people were now being taxed enormously for the telegraph facilities.

The Cuban Revolution Cannot

NEW YORK, July 11.—The steamer Columbus from Havanah has arrived. The reported insurrection in Puerto Principe proves to be a ground. There was only a slight encounter between the rebels and citizens, caused by practical jokes being played on the farmer, when were ordered to the barracks and serious trouble prevented. One hundred and twenty Spaniards were expelled from the church in Cuba.

Monetary and Commercial.

NEW YORK, July 11.—The Sun's money article says: There is no scarcity of gold for delivery and loans of coin are made either without interest or three or four per cent in favor of borrowers. The foreign demand for United States securities is the only feature of interest on the stock exchange. There is much activity in the loan market. Cotton dull and lower, 36c for middling. Flour dull, and prices tend strongly downwards. Wheat drooping. Corn is a trifle firmer. Wool, domestic and foreign, quiet at 65@66c for superior and extra pulled. 23@44c for California. Pork dull and lower. Beef dull and unchanged. Lard dull.

The Commercial's money article says stock transactions are unusually large and prices range higher than at the last Government loan presents a large operator in its own securities, and the present excited quotations are chiefly owing to the transactions. The passage of the tariff act in the House by such a large majority has revived confidence that the bill will become a law. Money is in rather more demand and some are bidding for higher rates. Discounts are a shade firmer, but quiet. The Philadelphia wool market is reported as active and advancing.

Senator Lane is Dead—President expected to veto Freedmen's Bureau Bill.

WASHINGTON July 11.—Senator Pomeroy and Representative Clark of Kansas received telegrams announcing the death of Senator Lane at Leavenworth to-day. The tax bill will be presented to the President to-morrow for his signature. The President has been unwell for some days which delays the veto of the Freedmen's Bureau Bill which has failed so far in turn before it can become a law. It is stated that Seward opposes a veto, believing that too many vetoes will have a bad effect. The State Department has received no official advices whatever concerning the reported Cuban insurrection. A conference committee has been ordered on the bill to quiet land titles in California.

A New Steamer for the Pacific—New Cases of Cholera.

NEW YORK July 11.—The Pacific Mail Company's new steamer Montana will leave here about the 25th for San Francisco. Three cases of cholera are reported in this city and two in Brooklyn to-day.

Head Center Stephens Arrested.

BOSTON July 11.—Head Center Stephens was arrested to-day at the suit of Patterson who claims $1 000 for delivering lectures on Fenianism and the expenses incurred in the excursion to Campobello. Stephens appeared in the Municipal Court and gave bonds to the amount of $7 000.

Election of Senators in Nebraska.

OMAHA July 11.—The Legislature elected under the State Constitution of Nebraska met to-day and elected Gen John W Thayer and F Wenton U S Senators. Both are Republicans. Legislature adjourned sine die.

The Project of Canadian Annexation.

OTTAWA C W July 11.—There was an excited session of the Canadian Parliament yesterday. The opposition assailed the Government with great force and effect, and the project of annexation to the United States seems to gain favor.

A GHASTLY DISCOVERY.—Recently in England there have been some important discoveries of human skeletons in considerable numbers. Upwards of 200 skeletons have been found at Mitcote, near Stratford on Avon, on flat table land, gently sloping to the River Stour.

Indian Matters Again

Since I last addressed you from San Francisco the proprietors of the Dalles and Canyon City Stage Company addressed them a letter in relation to the Indians on their route from Umatilla and the necessity for military protection Mr Brooks having from personal observation the dangerous condition of the road, promptly called upon Hallock to ask that a force of soldiers might be sent there The result of the application is tersely stated in the following note from Mr Brooks to the Stage Company

San Francisco, Cal. June 11th, 1866

GENTLEMEN In reply to your letter of the 11th ult I have to inform you that from the reports received from Major General Halleck and explained to him the necessity for military protection His reply was that the forces now at his command were not sufficient to enable him to do anything for your route at present

Very respectly QUINCY A BROOKS

Special Agent P O Department

Dalles & Canyon City Stage Co , Dalles, Ogn.

In view of the two facts that Gen Hallock finds no difficulty in amply protecting the Chico route and that he is rushing the muster-out of every volunteer in this military division, the above reply to Mr Brooks is decidedly cool and refreshing Why are all the troops withdrawn from Eastern Oregon leaving it entirely exposed, and sent to the Chico road rendering it so secure as to afford to interested parties the boast that "it is the least dangerous road in all the Indian country," If there are but few troops why are they not divided among the exposed districts with some show of fairness? Partial protection is better than none at all. A few soldiers on the Dalles and Canyon City road would render it more secure than if all were taken away If there are not enough regular troops, why are not more sent out? Or, if that can not be done now, why are not the volunteers retained until it can be done?

These are all questions which Gen Hallock may think we have no business to ask and to which he may not think it worth his while to give his attention But the people who travel the Canyon road or risk their lives in the mines or in the agricultural development of Eastern Oregon, think they have the right to ask why they are left totally unprotected, and they are presuming enough to suppose that it is somebody's business to afford them relief, and that somebody is culpably negligent We believe with those people that the life and security of a citizen of Eastern Oregon, are just as valuable as though he lived in the immediate vicinity of the Chico road. The safe and regular transmission of the United States mails over the Canyon road is just about as important as though carried over the Chico or "any other road's" route

At present there is no safety for either. The miners about Canyon City are compelled to remain within or near the town, or, if they go out, must go in large parties and stand guard with musket in hand over their claims. The mail stage is not unfrequently delayed, and single travelers often are waylaid and killed or robbed, while stock is almost weekly driven off.

But Gen. Hallock has been over the Chico route and has come down through that portion of Oregon which is protected by the settlers. He will do what seemeth to him good. We do not feel at all confident that he will do anything for the Canyon City region, but we may be happily disappointed. We shall wait and see.

British Neutrality Illustrated.

We observe that some of our California exchanges are engaged in earnest and profound speculation upon the meaning of the announcement that General Banks has introduced in the House of Representatives a resolution authorising the President of the United States, by proclamation, to admit the British Provinces into the Union. It does not seem to have occurred to these puzzled journalists that the resolution of General Banks was introduced as an appropriate reminder to England of the beauties of her sort of neutrality. The Fenian movement was under way in the Canadas were in an uproar, martial law was established and the Provinces were in a state of war. The situation was somewhat analogous to that of our country in 1861 when England with such eager haste recognized the insurrectionists as belligerents It was; therefore, perfectly fair and proper at the time of the Fenian war; for us to busy ourselves with England's affairs quite as extensively as she had done with ours. The act of England in recognizing our rebels as belligerents in 1861, was therefore fitly answered by the resolution introduced in Congress to admit her North American Provinces into our Union. England accorded to the Southern rebels belligerent rights, just as if they had already achieved their independence. General Banks' proposition was to admit the British Provinces into the Union just as if they had already been conquered from England by the Fenians. British neutrality is likely to meet a great many opportunities for further illustration.

Spain and South America.

It is surmised by many that Spain, satisfied by the repulse of her fleet at Callao that no easy conquest lies before her, will not renew her attack upon the republics of South America which she has been trying to humiliate and overthrow The Spanish fleet seems to have left the waters of Chile and Peru, and with the experience it has had, its return is scarcely probable The Courrier des Etats Unis," of New York, a journal which is supposed to be well informed on matters relating to France and Spain, thus spoke of the withdrawal of the Spanish fleet, and the reasons therefor

"It is known that since a month Winter has set in in the Southern hemisphere, and Spain has acted wisely in not exposing its fleet to the storms which, during this season, desolate the Southern coasts of the Pacific. One portion of the Spanish navy will take its winter quarters at the Philippine Islands, and the other at Montevideo, or Rio Janeiro. Of the return of the armament season, the Spanish fleet, re-enforced by the iron-clad Texas and other vessels will square up the accounts of the Spanish Government with Chili Peru, and Ecuador, unless in the meanwhile the friendly services of foreign powers should bring about an arrangement."

It is not unlikely that by the return of the summer season, the allied republics of South America will have a fleet quite able to cope with that of Spain By the time appointed for the return of the Spanish fleet the coasts of Chili, Peru and Ecuador will be well fortified, and at all points as impregnable as Callao. If Spain makes another attack, the accounts will probably be 'squared' not in her favor but on the side of the unoffending republics on which she has been aggressing

SEWARD ON 'MY POLICY'.—The news of this morning informs us that Secretary Seward opposes the prospective veto of the Freedmen's Bureau bill, on the ground that any more vetoes will have a bad effect He evidently thinks that there have been quite enough vetoes, and that 'my policy' can't stand another one just now "My policy," however, demands the veto of every law of Congress affecting the unrepresented eleven States The Freedmen's Bureau bill affects them inasmuch as it continues the present law in force, and to not veto it is to abandon 'my policy.' Seward thinks 'my policy' has been carried out in that direction about as far as it can be safely done What a commentary on 'my policy," that it can not be adhered to any longer without having a "bad effect" Thus pop goes one of the main supports of 'my policy,' and what makes the crash worse is that on this policy dictates the abandonment of "my policy." Seward has "weakened" The right hand of 'my policy' has chopped itself off and 'my policy' now goes limping to its tomb Speak reverently of it, for it will soon be dead

OUR WASHINGTON LETTER

FROM OUR REGULAR CORRESPONDENT

WASHINGTON D C , June 16, 1866

One of the principal countenances of the hour is the fact that gold has risen and is still rising Everybody is making What is to be one of our financial systems? and Secretary McCulloch with the rest He is anxious nervous and has lost much of his faith in his own abilities as other people have in them It is said by his report to Congress that he has run in a great mistake in selling off nearly all the gold and that the plan which he urged upon Congress last winter by placing a large loan abroad and paying the interest there in coin would have proved ruinous As things have turned out Mr McCulloch would be very glad if not one of our bonds were held in Europe—if not one of them had been sent abroad If the face of the bonds holds firm but gold goes correspondingly up and all values with it The high tariff men are delighted for every bound that gold goes upward but adds to their tariff rates Unfortunately Mr McCulloch personally as friend loses in Congress His speech on the serenade night disgusted everybody. I have even heard Copperheads admit that it was a very injudicious speech, for Mr McCulloch is in a manner dependent upon Congress for the success of his financial policy. He needs further legislation, yet at such a time Mr McCulloch committed the shocking blunder to ridicule Congress—to talk of "Constitution tinkers" Congress can turn round and give him the sick name of currency tinker Gold has risen 20 per cent. under his tinkering! This is not a result to be very proud of, and he is very naturally nervous under it

Meantime the reckless members of Congress (there are some reckless men in both branches) go on in the easy work of adding to the national debt They are ready to vote bonds to Mexico and railway bonds to almost every applicant Where the policy will end every body can see—if it is not changed.

The Fenians have at length grown so bold being actually engaged in open war against England by the way of Canada, that the Government has been compelled to interfere Mr Seward, true to his nature, kept quieting Mr Fredrick Bruce with the statement that there was nothing in the movement—that not a gun would be fired and no attempt would be made upon Canada Mr Seward is an optimist He never scents danger till it overwhelms him But at last the Unionists struck a blow Mr Seward was startled out of his sereno He did not know what to do at first The President was averse to giving unnecessary offense to the tens of thousands of Fenian voters in the loyal States, but Mr Seward told him it would not do in this case to show the white feather for John Bull was already growling So the proclamation was issued. It is a warning and should be heeded, but I do not believe the Fenians have very much to fear from the courts unless they do a good deal more than they have done yet If they persist in making the United States the base of military operations against Canada, after the proclamation the Government may be driven into compelling them to desist. So far as my knowledge goes, the most of them were Copperheads during the war against rebellion, hence, there is very little sympathy for them with Republicans in Congress. The President evidently regards them as a nuisance If they wanted to fight, why didn't they go over upon Canada and in a large body, and stay there' Then either they would have been badly whipped or would have got control of Canada Either way would have been better than this miserable half way business. Grant and Meade are on the alert, but do not know where the war will break out again

The debate in the Senate upon Reconstruction has been quite interesting and instructive of use in parts. The regular set speeches of the House were like essays, but there has been actual debate in the Senate. Colloquial debate is dying out in the House under the hour rule, but it is difficult to see how any business could be done In the Senate the number of members is smaller and the character of the men is on an average higher. I think Perhaps the very fact that a man is in the Senate makes some difference He feels the influence of that body over him and acts with more dignity than he would if he were in the House.

But I have wandered off from my subject—the reconstruction debate There are one or two passages which I desire to refer to and quote from.

Doolittle a few weeks ago made a good deal of fuss over the fact that Nye and other contestants in the debate upon the President attempted to show that he had broken his promise to "make treason odious." Doolittle found that he could slightly embarrass his radical friends by asking them how many rebels they wished to have hung! But the tables have turned In arguing this proposed Constitutional amendment, Doolittle's great point is that the leading rebels should be tried and punished, and after that, when the balance have been pardoned Congress shall not attempt to impose political disabilities.

At this point Nye rushed in upon his ancient enemy upon the gallop "How many rebels would the Senator from Wisconsin punish?" This was the question Doolittle asked Nye three weeks ago, and now the Senator from Nevada had an excellent opportunity to press it home upon the man who asked it. Doolittle got out of his scrape pretty well, for he said that he would be content with the number named by Mr Nye some weeks ago, that is five or six

Sherman, of Ohio, then had something to say:

Mr. Sherman—If it will not interrupt my friend from Wisconsin I should like to ask him a question whether there is in history an example of an insurrection of the most ordinary character terminating with no punishment to any man, no deprivation of property, no deprivation of any rights whatever except the right to hold office, whether ever more generous terms were held out to persons who had been engaged in insurrection than are here proposed?

Mr Doolittle—I understand, then, my friend, the Senator from Ohio, to admit that adopting this section does away with all further punishment

Mr Sherman—No, I do not think this will prevent your hanging four or five.

Mr Doolittle—I understand the Senator by his question to admit that adopting this report all other penalties as against the men included within the section.

Mr Sherman—Not at all If the Senator wants to take the blood of four or five I am perfectly willing

Doolittle by this time was a little uneasy The fact is, and all the Senate knows it that he doesn't want anybody hung but he made use of the punishment doctrine as a part of his argument When it is proposed to discriminate rebels he is for hanging, and when hanging is proposed Doolittle and family has an accession of pity and love.

There was also a brief passage between Senators Trumbull and Doolittle

Mr Trumbull—I recollect the Senator from Wisconsin himself, in a speech some days ago spoke of the President's officers. The President has got no officers.

Mr. Doolittle—I never stated that

Mr. Trumbull—The Senator spoke of those being responsible to the President

Mr Doolittle—So I did, and that is a fact

Mr Trumbull—How so?

Mr Doolittle—They are responsible to the President.

Mr. Trumbull—They are responsible to the law of the land and not to the President

Mr Doolittle rose.

Mr Trumbull—Let the Senator keep cool I undertake to say that a person holding office, who does not acknowledge his responsibility to the law and has oath of office, but to a President is not fit to be an officer. No officer is responsible to the President, but his responsibility is to the law under which he acts The President is not competent in this country He does not create offices, he cannot appoint an individual to the humblest office in the land except in pursuance of the Constitution and the law He himself is responsible to the Constitution and the law and so is the most inferior postmaster in the land This idea that the officers of this country belong to the President, that men eat his bread and butter, is very erroneous. Why sir the President feeds nobody It is derogatory to the position of any man who holds an office to talk of his eating the bread and butter of the President and being responsible to the President and not to his oath of office to the law and the Constitution

I think, on the whole, that Mr Doolittle got enough in the course of the debate, of his bill of defending the President and the rebels There were too many against one As for Dixon, he has gone home to Connecticut and it is said that he is gone for good Certainly he does not show himself in these debates or in the votes Possibly he will soon show himself again If there is any chance to save the President from defeat on any question he will surely turn up in his place It is supposed that Wright, of New Jersey would have ended his worldly exist nce before this, but it is now said that he may live long enough to cheat the republican Governor of New Jersey out of his appointment of a Senator It was all arranged the other day that Cattell, was to have the place when it was supposed that Wright was dead There will be a great struggle in New Jersey next fall between the Democracy and the Republicans The President pretends to give his influence to the Copperheads and I see no reason to doubt that he will keep his word except the fact that he has almost the Republicans Any man who has shouted for Grant as one about his enemies I look out for the same conduct in other States—some Republicans, however, are more hopeful. STEAMBOAT

Told You So!

The Herald editor notices the number of arrivals of Chinese in this State and as might be expected in no wise has but a single idea entered into their cunning the property of the Celestials will" What" says he "but the Civil Rights bill opens the way to this for all citizens" As if there were not 10 000 Chinese in the Pacific States and Territories before the Civil Rights act was the night of And if Portland did not contain Chinese years ago—long long before the Democratic party, thinking to make capital by closing began to deprecate their coming The Civil Rights law was enacted only three months ago yet the Herald would have its readers believe that the Chinese now coming into this State are persons who left their native country immediately on hearing of its passage, for the express purpose of residing here, only for the reason that we have a Civil Rights law Truly they are making wonderfully quick trips across the ocean But having been informed by the representations of the Herald editor to hasten so long, a journey to obtain Civil Rights, they will no doubt be grievously disappointed on learning that the law of Civil Rights has no reference whatever to them The law has no application to any class of persons except those born in the United States Therefore the Chinese who are coming to United States to obtain the privileges which Democratic politicians say the Civil Rights law gives them may as well return at once with a resolution never to trust Democratic promises more They have been cheated and betrayed and will probably be aware of future impositions from that quarter

For every evil that exists in the country the Herald editor ascribes one invariable cause the Civil Rights bill He that had their origin in the good old Democratic times, when slave codes and fugitive slave laws, instead of Civil Rights bills, were in vogue, are attributed by this philosopher to the workings of the law of Civil Rights Every possible incident—every irrelevant notion, image, occurrence, fortuity, mooted venture or phenomenon, is brought in to support this one idea "Told you so" is the exultant ejaculation "When a man says Shandy "gives himself up to the government of a ruling passion—or in other words when his hobby horse grows headstrong—farewell cool reason and fair discretion"

FENIAN TRIALS.—The St Louis Democrat, commenting upon the Fenian trials in that city, says

The extraordinary prosecutions now in progress in the United States District Court are exciting general interest and are regarded as a new line of policy by the United States Government When Henry Clay, in the flower of his fame, spoke in Congress in favor of liberty in Greece, when Sam Houston and David Crockett led their backwoodsmen into Texas to fight for the establishment of the Lone Star Republic, when Canada was invaded by the patriots thirty years ago, when Kossuth passed through this country receiving material aid" for the cause of Hungary, then we heard of no arrests by the Government; then we had freedom of speech under our republican institutions and America was regarded as the friend of the oppressed in all quarters of the globe During the Crimean war an Englishman, then residing in this city, raised a company of Irish and English soldiers, drilled them in a room over the office of the United States District Attorney, and marched them unmolested and unquestioned to England, and thence to the seat of war Money was raised in the city to transport these men across the seas, but neither the Government nor the officers here attempted to interfere for the enforcement of the "neutrality laws" Now the policy of the Government is changed

SETTLES THE QUESTION.—When we see Union papers publishing the Union Platform upon which Lincoln was nominated, for the purpose of proving that Johnson stands upon it to-day, we are prompted to ask but one question which does away with all political pettifogging. It is this If Johnson's is Lincoln's policy why did not the rebels endorse it instead of assassinating the author? Answer this satisfactorily and we are for A. Johnson

Hon John A Frazer, State Senator from Polk county, died of consumption at Salem on Wednesday evening. He was a man of exemplary character, a useful citizen, and one of the most valuable members of the Legislature A special election will no doubt be ordered to fill the vacancy which has thus occurred

PORTLAND A PORT OF ENTRY.—It has been suggested that our people should frame and circulate a petition ... whatever is necessary to be done during ... Congress to establish a Port of Entry at Portland, ... a Custom House and all the necessary ... It is so self-evident a necessity for the ... Oregon, and particularly of the Willamette and Columbia ... region, with the immense business of the vast bonds, country east of the Cascade mountains, as well as the ... importance to the city, that the subject ... as an argument ... presentation to the public. It is a matter that requires immediate and persevering action on the part of our citizens. Our representation in Congress is, without a doubt, able and willing to further the wishes, and aid in providing for the wants and necessities of the State of Oregon. It is the duty of the citizens, therefore, to make known to them in a formal manner, what those wants, wishes, and requirements are. We believe that early and favorable action could now be had in Congress upon any reasonable requests that could be made. The experiment is worth receiving at all events, and should it result in failure and bring no immediate consequent benefit, it can do no harm, and will be certain of ultimate success. Connected with this subject is another, of scarcely less importance, and that is the establishment of a Marine Hospital here by the United States Government. The now great and constantly increasing trade with Oregon, through this emporium, by means of sea going vessels, and boats navigating the inland waters of the State, necessarily employs a large number of sailors and others, who are constantly arriving and departing from the city, and it is estimated that not less than two thousand men will very shortly be engaged in this way. These men are, any of them, liable to ... ness, and they are entitled to a place where the requisite attention, care, and medical attendance can be bestowed. Many of them have no homes or places where, under such circumstances, they can well be taken care of, and there are numerous instances where they have no money to pay such bills with. Yet, this class of persons have to pay a tax for the erection and maintenance of Marine Hospitals for sick and disabled persons. They should by all means have the advantages of such institutions in this city, and not especially in view of the ... previous. If this State is entitled to a Land ... Hospital at the hands of the general government ... the pressing necessity of its location at Portland must ... apparent to the most casual observer. The building ... lately vacated by the State, in this city, known as the ... Quarantine building, is well calculated for the purposes ... Marine Hospital, and we presume it could be obtained on very reasonable terms. Not only American seamen, but sick and disabled citizens from whatever clime, if taken sick or meeting with accidents here, must be provided for and already Multnomah county has incurred unreasonable obligations for the maintenance of such at the expense of the public, and now the county should be relieved of this responsibility in future. They are neither a State nor a county charge nor can they be made so under existing laws but if people are found here to be destitute, under such circumstances, they must be taken care of according to the laws of humanity, and thus they are thrown entirely upon the charity of the public and of the medical practitioner. This is the great commercial entry for the region thousands of miles in extent, with thousands of inhabitants, and is very rapidly increasing in size, wealth, and importance, bidding fair to soon become as much connected with the great commerce known as is San Francisco to-day and it is somewhat strange that we have not already obtained a Marine Hospital a Custom House, Branch Mint, and Postoffice. It should be so no longer, and we shall often recur to this subject.

AGGRAVATING MISTAKE.—It would puzzle the most ... to ... how—by reading the Oregonian ... yesterday morning—Mr. Hooker was declared ... elected Auditor and Clerk, at the meeting of the Board of ... Councilmen the previous evening. The figures given ... yesterday were badly inked. Seven votes were cast On the second ballot they stood thus

[illegible] Hawley	4
[illegible] Hooker	4
[illegible] Bradley	1
Mr. Gazelly	1

Mr. Hooker having received the highest number, and it being more than sufficient to elect, was declared elected.

DEPARTURE OF THE HERALDS.—Crowds were gathered on the docks, and in the streets adjoining, to witness the departure of the San Francisco steamship last night. The opposition may be said to have been lively, and the "runners" made the most of it. It is not always pleasant for ladies to pass through these crowds, as they are almost sure to hear some offensive or insulting remark—not to them, perhaps, but to the crowd—which, if strictly ..., is punishable by law, and most certainly can be checked by the owners of the respective vessels. They carried away about an equal number of passengers, each, many of whom are old Oregonians intending only to be absent a few weeks.

THE HIBERNICON.—A fair audience witnessed the first representation of the panorama of Ireland, at Ore Fine Hall last night. The different scenes were depicted in graphic style by Mr. Warwick, who was for many years connected with the stage in California. He is an excellent reader and a good imitator of Irish character. The entertainment is varied by the twins Bell Ringers and song and dance by Miss Clara, who have performed here before. Another exhibition takes place this evening.

DEPARTED.—Mr. D. C. Ireland, Local Editor of this paper, left on the steamship Oriflamme, last night, for a "winged" trip to San Francisco. We hope the "fraternity" of that metropolis will look with a lenient eye upon him, and see that he is properly cared for. His "card" in this department will look for the courtesy which has always been extended to him, and trust that all delinquent will receive charitable criticism. Mr. I will probably be absent about two weeks.

GOOD HOME.—The Rinaldo Troop to-d[ay] took on board ... for Vancouver, Captains McCall and Kelly with their Companies, A and C, of the cavalry. They are under orders for discharge. The soldiers are a fine, hardy looking set of men who have seen service. They seem to enjoy the prospect of ... soon going home. Captains McCall and Kelly have been in the army since the organization of the cavalry regiment, and have both achieved a name ... efficient and honorable officers.

SUPREME'S COURT.—J. J. HOFFMAN J.—Stephen Carr ... was committed to the county jail yesterday, in default of fine, upon being found guilty before Judge Hoffman of ... assault upon Valentine Smith. ... Hong Sing, a Chinaman, was tried for committing a nuisance, by pouring slops from a wash house, under a building in the rear of Smith & Culpe's store. His case was taken under advisement.

SHIPMENTS BY THE MONTANA.—The following is a list of shipments by the Montana last night:—4 cases and 1 package merchandise; 87 bales wool; 18 gunnies dried fish; 8 half barrels do; 3 half barrels eggs; 15 boxes dry; 29 boxes fruit; 213 barrels salmon; 783 quarter sacks flour; 24 gunnies bacon; 3 rolls and 4 packages leather. There were 63 cabin passengers.

DEPARTURE OF THE VIRGILIUS.—The iron steamship Virgilius, Captain Erskine, sailed for Victoria at two o'clock P. M., yesterday, with about 30 passengers, and cargo as follows: 3,803 qr. sks flour, 24 boxes cheese, 6 boxes merchandise, 22 barrels pitch, 160 gunnies bone, 6 cases lard, 27 sks. wheat, and 6 bbls. bbls. dried apples.

PERSONAL.—Mr. Keltner, editor and proprietor of the Democratic Register, favored us with a friendly call last evening. "Tone" does not seem to be at all extinguished, and professes to be as confident as ever that the "eternal principles" will yet prevail.

QUARANTAINE.—Among the passengers of the Montana was the Governor elect, Hon Geo. L. Woods. He will make a flying trip to California, and will, no doubt, be somewhat feted by the San Franciscans.

TREASURE.—Wells, Fargo & Co shipped $80,000 by the Oriflamme, Ladd & Tilton $30,000, and Goldsmith Bros $10,000. She also carried a fair freight.

TELEGRAM.—A telegraphic dispatch may be found at the office for John Bonser.

VALUABLE MANUSCRIPTS REVEALED.—The Paris Moniteur makes an important announcement. The town of Kilosmiadzin, near Mount Ararat, in Armenia, the residence of the Patriarch, contains a splendid library, composed of three thousand Armenian manuscripts of which the literary world was hitherto quite ignorant. A catalogue of the collection has now been printed, and presents a fine field for researches into the religious and political history of Central Asia. It reveals the existence of unknown works by the fathers of the church, and of fragments of Diodorus, Sinulus, and of Aristotle. The Armenian Patriarch states, in an official preface, that these manuscripts which have been kept secret will be for the future not only open to examination, but that extracts may be taken for learned men in all parts of the world, if they pay the cost of copying.

"LOYAL" MINISTERS.—A pastor in one of the Southern States writes as follows:

"It is a fact that ministers of the Gospel in the South, who have generally returned to their parishes, were almost without exception, bitterly opposed to the Government, and are exerting all their influence against loyalty and reconstruction. It is the opinion of candid loyal men, that they are exerting a stronger influence in that direction than any other class of men in the South."

Mayor Monroe, of New Orleans, would not hoist the flag of the City Hall at half mast in respect to the memory of General Scott. He is the man who was pardoned by the President that he might occupy his present position.

FROM WALLA WALLA.

We obtain the following from the Statesman of the 7th

THE GREAT FIRE.

About one o'clock on Wednesday afternoon, July 4th, a fire broke out in the planing and saw mill of Smith & Allen, near the corner of Third and Alder streets, which for a time threatened to destroy the whole of the upper part of Walla Walla. The fire is believed to have originated in the careless use fire crackers. The fire appeared to have been first communicated to some loose shavings in front of the planing mill and thence extended to the main structure, which in a moment was wrapped in a sheet of flame. The fire quickly communicated to the Masonic Hall, a fine two-story building, which stood on the corner of Third and Alder streets. At this time the wind was blowing a perfect gale from the south, which fanned the flames into the highest fury. Soon all the buildings on the south side of Alder street, between First and Third streets were on fire, and all hope of saving anything within the district named, was given over. By the most strenuous and heroic exertions on the part of the firemen and citizens, the fire was prevented from crossing Alder street, and thus the main business portion of the city was saved from destruction.

The little stream that courses along the north side of Alder street was of inestimable value in affording an abundant supply of water, without which the whole business part of this town would have been laid in ashes. As it is, whilst we have to deplore the loss of much valuable property, bringing with it distress to many worthy citizens, we still have abundant reason to feel thankful that the calamity was no greater, and that we are not called upon to chronicle a general conflagration. We append a list of the property destroyed, together with the estimated value:

Masonic Hall, building and furniture	$7,000
Wm. Phillips, goods and store in Hall	3,000
Smith & Allen, planing and saw mill	2,500
J. B. Gardner, two dwellings	800
John Sudan, two dwellings	1,000
Tidd & Stone, warehouse	250
W. A. Ball, dwelling	300
W. Kashergor, wagon shop	1,400
Shull & Abbott, blacksmith shop	1,000
A. Hartman dwelling and blacksmith shop	1,500
J. F. Booher, dwelling and furniture	1,200
Wm. Shull, furniture and clothing	600
Estate of Samuel Moss, 2 dwelling houses	1,000
B. G. Rees, 2 dwellings and furniture	1,200
Chas. Plucker, paint and carpenter shops	2,400
P. Buhr, dwelling	400
Mr. Crowe, paint shop, (torn down)	400
Two small houses, torn down	800
Wagons burned	400

Besides there was a large amount of furniture burned and broken, which will swell the loss to near $40,000. During the fire there was a considerable amount of clothing, furniture, etc., carried off—possibly stolen. We are loth to believe that we have those in our midst who would thus prey upon the misfortunes of their fellow men. Citizens since the fire have exhibited a commendable liberality in assisting the sufferers. There is yet abundant opportunity to do good in this way. Many of the unfortunates are stripped of every dollar they had in the world, and in their present condition merit both sympathy and assistance. The most practical way of manifesting this sympathy is to visit the sufferers and hand them over $5, $10 or $20, or whatever other amount may best express your sorrow for their misfortunes.

A FEARFUL LEAP.

At the fire on the Fourth of July, a gentleman named D'Neill, who had ascended to the second story of the Masonic Hall, for the purpose of removing the regalia, found his exit down stairs cut off by fire. The only means of escape left was to jump from the second story window—a distance of possibly 16 feet. He made the fearful leap, and reached the ground, sustained no injury beyond being stunned by the fall.

MISCELLANEOUS ITEMS.

Capt Gillias, A. Q. M., U. S. A., has arrived at Fort Walla Walla on business connected with the military service.

A camp meeting, under the direction of the United Brethren, was commenced on Sunday last, in the grove of Mr Sexton, on the Tum-a-Lum, distant from town about six miles. The meeting continued for three days, and throughout the attendance was large. It is estimated that the Sunday morning service was listened to by not less than six hundred persons.

Bishop Scott, of the Episcopal Church, will preach in the Methodist Church, on Sunday morning, and in the evening, at the usual hour.

At the outbreak of the late fire, the advertising forms of the Statesman were knocked into "pi."

BALLARD ABOUT WARREN HASTINGS.—The London Spectator in a criticism of Macaulay, gives a new and curious instance of the fidelity of his literary workmanship. "In the Essay on Warren Hastings" occurs the remark that nurses in Bengal still slay children to sleep with a jingling ballad about Warren Hastings, his elephants and his steeds. A writer then in Bengal, believing this to be merely one of Macaulay's pictorial statements, Macaulay not knowing a word of Bengalee, made inquiries among the villagers, discovered that the ballad was actually in existence, that it was sung to children, and that it jingled with double rhymes in a way which the true Bengalee ballad, which is nearly in the meter of Macaulay's own "Virginius," but slower, does not.

MOST LOVELY. ELLSWORTH & CARD ... 89 First Street have established the singular fact that beauty and loveliness are enduring. They furnish the public the ONLY GENUINE ENAMELED CARD PICTURES and SUN PEARLS to be obtained in the city, while all specimens of the Photographic Art are of the same superior kind as heretofore. The exhibition at this Gallery and Museum is free to all.

FROM THE UPPER COLUMBIA

The following is an extract from a letter to the Walla Walla Statesman, dated Pend d'Oreille, June 23d:

Yesterday I crossed the lake and up Clark's Fork to the Cabinet, 9 miles. The lake is a good sheet of water for navigation and Moody's boat is a success. The scenery is both grand and beautiful. It is a happy retreat to the traveler to pass along on a steamboat through a rough mountain range instead of clambering over the craggy peaks which are yet covered with snow.

I understand Messrs Abrams, Illingsworth and others are about to build two more steamboats to navigate Clark's Fork. The first two run from the Cabinet portage to the falls of Thompson's prairie—the other from the falls of Jocko—making the entire navigation of lake and river about two hundred miles. On this route will be two portages—one seven and the other two miles. The terminus of navigation at Jocko, is within 65 miles of Elk creek diggings. This route entirely avoids the mountains, and I think that every business man must see that if the western slope ever gets the Montana trade at must be by this route, and none other.

This route is open in the spring almost as soon as the Columbia river, and can be traveled with safety until December, while the Mullan road over the mountains, and the road from Lewiston are closed from October to the middle of June. The question of opening the best route to Black foot—one that can compete with the Missouri river—should not be trammeled by local prejudice. It is a matter of too much importance to the whole country. To secure the Montana trade to this side is more valuable to us than the traffic of all our other mines, and none will be so immediately and directly benefited by it as Walla Walla Valley. Walla Walla must be the base of supplies and operations, and it is unmaterial whether the traveler or freighter turns to the left at the Spokane, and goes to the lake, 20 miles, or takes the right hand road over the mountains. Either way the freight will go from Palouse landing or Wallula.

I heard a report yesterday that about 25 men were engaged in mining at Thompson's prairie, and that one of the packers had sold out part of his cargo to them. I give this as I heard it, without knowing anything about the truth of the report.

Since Moody has reduced the price on his boat most of the trains have gone the way. I suppose the stormy weather (snowing in the mountains,) has operated to send them this way.

All Persons should test the merits of DR HOSTETTER'S STOMACH BITTERS. While it is highly palatable as a beverage it is unequalled as a tonic and invigorator. In the pursuit of fortune of the mines many persons are exposed to the attacks of complaints of the digestive organs, and of various kinds of fever. It is the very article that has so long been in demand at the mines. Its daily use will restore the tone of a deranged stomach impart fresh vitality to the digestive functions and invest the spirits. Yet the Bitters is the safest of all stimulants. Let the miner who is exposed to hot and dry, wet and cold, be certain to obtain a supply of the genuine Hostetter Bitter and he will find it a certain safeguard to health. The undersigned, who has always enjoyed public confidence for the excellent quality of his Coffee, neglects nothing to justify the good name acquired by his productions, the sale of which daily increases. The acknowledged superiority of his merchandise, which commands here, and in the markets of the interior, a relatively higher price, excites the cupidity of some manufacturers, and every day to wate increasing the number of those who, by counterfeit or imitation of his mark, seek to deceive the public, palming upon them their inferior productions for the genuine G. VENARD CHARTRES COFFEE. This fraud can deceive nobody after a trial, but only adds to the fortunate opinion of its consumers, the very flattering though unwilling testimony of the counterfeiters. Nevertheless, buyers should be forewarned, and placed on their guard against this practice.

Phantoms

About us we tumbled wreaths among white,
My love and I danced in the pale moonlight

In the pale moonlight, while the stars so few,
We moved up and through the sparkling dew,

Through the sparkling dew while the bottle hums
And laid in the grass the wicked drums

My love was fickle—my love was fair,
And a mischief not was her midnight hair

Her mirth that night—and the wine we quaffed
Were the two waves brought with a living draught

With such a draught in such a wondrous spell,
Whose power I would not, I could not repel

Until a spell in each lay the wine
That I pledged with her, and it made her mine

It made her mine—for we mingled our breath
And straight were wed by the good priest Death,

By the good priest Death, and hail ho! by night
We merrily danced in the pale moonlight

— W. L. Shoemaker

The Discoverer of the Columbia River.

Capt C Loring, at present residing in Auburn, recently presented to the Free Public Library, a manuscript journal, kept by his brother, Capt C Loring, on a voyage from Canton to Boston, in the Columbia Rediviva, in 1793. This ship, commanded by Capt Robert Gray, was then on her homeward passage from a voyage round the world, she having left Boston in 1791. In May, 1795, Capt. Gray discovered the mouth of the Columbia river, on the north-west coast of North America, to which he gave the name of his ship This was the first voyage round the world made from an American port in an American vessel.

Capt. Loring and his ship had been wrecked on the Nicobar Islands, from which he found his way to Canton, and from thence to Boston, in the Columbia, wherd, acting in the capacity of first mate, he kept the journal above mentioned.

We copy the above from the Ægis and Transcript, published in Worcester, Mass. It was our privilege to visit Oregon in 1849, on board the good steamer Massachusetts, Capt. Wood. At that time we took some interest to investigate the merits of the different navigators claiming to have discovered the mouth of the Columbia river, and the following paragraphs were penned at that time in "Our Log Book." (See Friend, of Sept 1, 1849.)

This is a spot replete with associations of the deepest interest. Not sixty years have rolled away since the first vessel from a civilized nation anchored within the bar. For ages, the Columbia, or, as it was called by the Indians of the country, "the Great River," has poured its full tribute of waters into the Pacific, although its existence was unknown to the civilized and commercial world A Spanish navigator, Bruno Heceta, commanding the corvette Santiago, sailed along this coast in 1775, and is supposed to have been the first who expressed his decided opinion that a great river here entered the ocean. "These eddies and currents cause me to believe," in remarks, "that the place is the mouth of some great river, or some passage to another sea." The north cape he calls "Cape San Roque," the south "Cape Frudonso," and the bay "Assumption."

Three years pass, and in 1781 an Englishman, by the name of Meares, commanding a Portuguese vessel, attempts to discover this "great river," but failing in this enterprise, blots "Cape San Roque" from the chart and writes "Cape Disappointment," and for "Assumption Bay" writes "Deception Bay." Quitting the coast, Meares records in his journal, "We can now with safety assert that no such river as that of Saint Roque exists, as it is laid down in the Spanish charts."

A few more years elapse (1792,) and the distinguished navigator Vancouver, in found glancing his keen eye along the same rugged coast. His vessels sail within three miles of the breakers, but they extend across the mouth of "the great river." He looks in vain for an entrance. "Not considering," remarks Vancouver, in his Journal of April 27, "this opening worthy of more attention, I continued our course to the north-west." Only two days afterwards, Vancouver spoke the Boston ship Columbia, Capt. Gray, by whom he was informed that the Columbia had been off the mouth of a river in the latitude of 46° 10', where the outset or flux, was so strong as to prevent his entering for nine days." (Vancouver's Journal.) This statement of the Yankee captain was doubtless received with some incredulity by the English navigator for only two days previous his vessel was off the very same opening, which did not appear "worthy of more attention."

The vessels of Vancouver and Gray parted, the former sailing north, but the latter sailing south. Capt. Gray doubtless concluded that he would forever decide the point whether there was or was not a great river emptying into the ocean south of Cape Disappointment. On the 11th of May, Gray arrived opposite the entrance of the river, and heedless of the risk, in his ardent spirit of enterprise, dashed boldly through the breakers on the bar, and in a few moments slid out upon the tranquil bosom of a broad and majestic river. The great question was then forever settled. Heceta was right he said a great river here entered the ocean, and Meares was wrong when he asserted that no such river was in existence. Capt. Gray commenced trading with the Indians, exploring the surrounding bay, and ascending the river fifteen or twenty miles. He now assumes the prerogative of altering the name upon charts. 'On leaving the river,' an anonymous writer remarks, 'Capt. Gray bestowed on it the name of his vessel. The southern point of land he called Cape Adams, and substituted the name of Cape Hancock for that of Cape Disappointment. Neither Cape Hancock, nor Cape Adams have taken an assured place on the maps # # #. The name of the good ship Columbia, if it not too hard to believe, will flow with the waters of the bold river as long grass grows or water runs in the valley of the Rocky Mountains."

The discovery of the Columbia Captain Gray communicated to Vancouver, (accompanied by a rough chart) who in the autum of the same year, dispatched Lieut. Broughton, commanding the Columbia, to make an exploration. This enterprise was most successfully accomplished, Lieut. B. with boats, ascending as far up the river as Post Vancouver, about ninety or one hundred miles from its entrance. On his return down the river, the Jenny, a vessel belonging to Bristol, England, was found anchored in the bay, within Cape Disappointment. This noted bay was denominated 'Baker's Bay,' by Lieut. Broughton, in compliment to Capt. Baker, commanding the Jenny, which vessel took the lead on leaving the bay, and was followed by the Columbia.

THE STYLE OF WRITING SOUTHERN HISTORY OF THE LATE WAR.—We have received several numbers of a hebdomadal published at Richmond, Virginia, entitled the Southern Portfolio. From two articles in course of publication in the Portfolio, we gather the style in which Southern history of the war is to be written. One of these articles —"Sketches of Sherman's March from Savannah"—is from the pen of a staff officer in Wade Hampton's cavalry, and is a curiosity in its statements, certainly a rich specimen of historical frankness and veracity. According to this writer under no circumstances would the Yankees meet and contend with an equal number of confederates during all of Sherman's march. The Yankees invariably attacked inferior numbers of confederates, and, what is more surprising, while the confederates fell back, "they slaughtered, as they retreated, hecatombs of dastard invaders, fattening the land of the Sunny South with craven blood of the beastly hordes who had come to desk in its sunshine and feast on its richness." Wonderful! Yet, while all this slaughter was in progress, Sherman marched from conquest to conquest with his bleeding and torn army, and arrived at the end of his brilliant and unparalleled raid with a loss not amounting to two per cent. of the force with which he started.

But Southern pride must still be pandered to, and this Southern history of the war is being produced, as the war on the part of the South was commenced with an unblushing and outrageous lie! In the same paper we find another sketch entailed, "The Battle of Antietam," in which the writer indulges the same spirit of falsehood that characterizes the perversion of Sherman's march from Savannah. He avers that in all the skirmishes, attacks, charges, and movements of the armies in that battle, the Federal army, by a third, outnumbered the Confederate forces that the Federals acted sneakingly, kept at long range when at all possible, and that in a charge they shrank from "the dauntless sons of the South like cravens." This is a specimen of the literary food on which the whipped traitors of the South are being regaled. They are taught not only to believe that the cause in which they fought was holy and just, but that their valor was superior, their military skill more perfect, and their intelligence of a higher order than the same qualities in the troops of the North And while this teaching is in progress we have a President who insists that the people of the South are "loyally and well disposed" all of which is to be accredited to the happy effects of "RECONSTRUCTION"—Harrisburg Telegraph

Miss Thomas, in her Walter Going, says, "Women can make one another miserable in such infinitesimally small ways that a man can rarely be brought to comprehend how the business is made aged."

The Chincha Islands do not exceed in extent two and a half square miles, yet for years past they have supplied guano to an average of four hundred ships per annum the value of such cargoes in Europe being upwards of $50,000.

The Anniversary of the Settlement of California

[From the Alta of July 31.]

To-day is the ninety-seventh anniversary of the settlement of California On the first of July, 1769 Junipero Serra, at the head of a party of Spanish Franciscan friars and soldiers reached San Diego, with the purpose of civilizing the country and christianizing its savage inhabitants Junipero was an zealous as a monk that the sanctity of woman, the comforts of a frequent change of clean linen, the luxuries of the table, the observances of society these temptations of pelf and ease and the brilliant writings of poets and wits seem to have had no attractions for him At least his biographer represents him as a man who never thought of these things His sole ambition appears to have been to save his soul and the souls of others from the eternal perdition and infinite suffering of which he believed all mankind to be in the most imminent danger Learning, freedom, and intellectual enjoyment were not desirable to him unless as the means of assisting in the great purpose of saving souls The Indians knew nothing of the Holy Church and were on the road to perdition, they could be brought into the Church with a little trouble, and thus a vast amount of pain would be spared to man and much additional glory would be given to the kingdom of God This was the spirit of Junipero Serra and his associate friars, who had charge of the settlement of California.

The salvation of souls, however, was not the sole purpose of the expedition. It was the main object with Junipero, but he would not have come if the King of Spain had not given orders that the Spanish flag should float in Upper California The Cabinet of Madrid feared that some of the numerous maritime expeditions of the English would strive upon this country, which had remained unoccupied for more than two centuries since Cabrillo made the first voyage along the coast. The cheapest mode of settlement was the establishment of Missions, and the Franciscan order of friars was selected for the purpose — Some soldiers accompanied the Missionaries, partly as a guard and partly for the purpose of presenting a show of force and of possession.

The friars were recived by the Indians in a friendly manner, the work of baptising the red men and teaching them to repeat the catechism made considerable progress, and there were twenty-one Missions and twenty thousand converts at the end of fifty-three years, when, in 1822, the flag of Spain was lowered and that of Independent Mexico was hoisted in its place.

The spirit in which the friars managed the Indians did not please the authorities at the capital, and in 1845 the Missions were secularized; that is, the herds were taken by civilians, the Indians abandoned their industrious habits, and most of the friars left the country. After twenty-four years of Mexican rule another flag was hoisted, another language became dominant, another spirit prevailed. By a singular and wonderful coincidence, the Anglo-Saxons, before they had got secure hold of the country, discovered its unparalelled gold mines, and the world was astonished by the magnitude of the migration and by the torrent of treasure that flowed down from the Sierra Nevada, actually threatening to swamp the financial affairs of Europe The daily newspaper, the railroad, the steamboat, the telegraph, complicated machinery for agricultural, mining and mechanical purposes; the school house, and the lyceum for free discussion—are the symbols of the superstructure built upon the old missions, which are buried so deep under our present institutions that we almost wonder when we come on any of the marks of their former existence Instead of the Spaniards, California is now governed by Americans; instead of theologians, our people are now gold-hunters; instead of theology as the predominant spirit of our society, we have new humanity, or, as some writers term it, humanitarianism.

Cannon and Cannon Balls.

We find an allusion to cannon as early as the Spanish Chronicle of Alfonso VI., written by Pepro, Bishop of Leon, in describing a sea-fight in the eleventh century, between the Emirs of Seville and Tunis, he says: "The vessels of the King of Tunis had on board a number of iron pipes, out of which volumes of thundering fire (tonnere de fuego) were discharged." The first cannon cast in England are said to have been made by John Owen in 1535; but the art appears to have been introduced in a high state of perfection. Two large brass guns, preserved in 1835 from the Mary Rose, which were sunk at Spithead in 1545—one a 68-pounder, and the other a 24-pounder—in beauty of design and workmanship are equal to anything produced in the present day. The largest gun ever made in England; up to 1843, was one weighing eighteen tons, cast in that year for Mehemet Ali, Pasha of Egypt. The bore of the gun was within one-tenth an inch of sixteen inches (15 9 10 inches). The weight of its solid shot was 845 pounds, and of its shell, 900. The gun was twelve feet long, and had an immense quantity of metal at the breech.

A story is told of a cannon at Bejapoor, India, which weighs forty tons. A spot in the interior accommodates five persons, without much crowding. It is formed of mixed metal, of which there is said to be some portions of gold and a considerable quantity of silver, and is very sonorous. It was the work of Chutoby Coomy Khan, an officer in the service of Houssein Nizam Shah, Ahmudnugger. In giving its description of it, Colonel Sykes says:

"On the visit of Sir John Malpolm during a period of his Viceroyship at Bombay, the Satterah Rajah, who holds the surrounding territories under the British Government, directed that this gun should be fired off as an appropriate salute Though not charged with more than half the weight of powder which its chamber could contain, the concussion was awful, it shook many of the buildings to their foundations, and the terrified inhabitants, as the reverberations rolled along, expected to see the domes and towers, survivors of the former shocks, come tumbling about their ears."

At the siege of Antwerp, in 1830, Gen. Paixhans, of the French artillery, proposed to King Leopold to shorten the siege by means of a mortar, the shells of which would weigh 1,000 pounds, and contain each 100 pounds of powder. The proposal was thought to be inhuman, and it was not until after 50,000 cannon balls and shells had been spent in a vain bombardment, that the monster mortar, a charcoal casting made at Liège, was brought out. Nine shells were fired, huge flying masses, one of which burst in the air, and eight descended into the citadel. Two days after the first shell was fired the Dutch surrendered.

The artillery used at the siege of Bonna, in the war of Grenada, during the siege of Ferdinand and Isabella, were called bombards. They are still to be seen in that city, where they long served as columns in the market-place. The largest are about 12 feet in length, consisting of iron bars two inches in breadth, held together by bolts and rings of the same material. These were firmly attached to their carriages, incapable of either vertical or horizontal movement. The balls thrown from those engines were sometimes of iron, but more usually of marble. Several hundred of the latter have been picked up on the hills around Baza, many of them are fourteen inches in diameter, and weigh 176 pounds. At the siege of Bologna, at the beginning of the fifteenth century, according to Zurita, stone balls were discovered that weighed not less than 540 pounds. A gun recovered from one of the Turkish ships destroyed at Tobemo in 1770 was four iron feet two inches in length, and nine feet in circumference, twenty inches bore, and 240 owt, or 24,920 pounds weight.

The first instance of horizontal shell firing on record is that at the siege of Gibralter in 1779 where Capt Mercer, of the Thirty ninth regiment, suggested that five and a half inch shells, with short calculated fuses, should be fired from guns This practice answered so well that it became general. Red-hot balls were first used by Stephen Bathor, King of Poland, at the siege of Dantzig, 1576

Pistols were first used by the Germans, Bellay mentions them in the year 1544 In the time of Francis I. and under Henry II the German horsemen des reitres, were called pistoliers.

WEST POINTERS FOR IDAHO.—Three graduates of the U S. Military Academy of West Point, who recently arrived from the East, left this city this week on their way to Idaho Territory to try their fortunes in a new field of operations They were Generals Shaaf and Cosby, and Captain Mullan. They are natives respectively of Virginia, Kentucky and Maryland They graduated from West Point in the class of 1852, composed of forty five members, and joined the Academy with Sheridan, Kautz (Jerome Napoleon Bonaparte), McCook, Col Thos. F Wright, of the California Volunteers, and others who did good service in behalf of the Union during the late war Shaaf and Cosby linked their fortunes with the bogus "Southern Confederacy" at the outbreak of the war, while Mullan, disgraced in 1853 at not being appointed Governor of Idaho Territory, threw up his commission as Captain in the Second Regiment of U. S. Artillery, upon the solicitation of his old friend General Joe Hooker who tendered him the position of Chief of Staff with the rank of Colonel, could not win back his former attachment for the old Army. These ex officers may probably find the soil of Idaho a congenial field for their Copperhead proclivities.—Ivy, July 2d

An excited father called in great haste on Dr Abernethey and exclaimed, in an excited manner "Doctor! Doctor! my boy has swallowed a mouse!" "Then go home," quietly replied the Doctor, "and tell him to swallow a cat!"

HOSTETTER'S

CELEBRATED STOMACH BITTERS

READ AND REFLECT.

Make sure of HEALTH "But how?" you ask,
We answer, 'tis an easy task,
Strengthen the STOMACH, and sustain
The NERVES, the servants of the brain.
The LIVER keep in active play
And regulate, from day to day,
Each organ old, on Nature's plan,
Brace and refresh the INNER MAN,
And like a watch that's kept in chime
By constant care, with refined time,
The system's tone and strength renew,
And thereby cheer the spirits, too.
"How," you inquire, "can this be done?
This Victory o'er Disease be won?"
"HOSTETTER'S BITTERS," we reply,
To HEALTH'S SUPREME PROTECTION—TRY!

As a means of regenerating the disordered and enfeebled system, regulating every function of the internal organs, reviving the depressed spirits, invigorating the constitution, and prolonging life, no medicinal preparation, either of the past or the present time, has been so completely and universally successful as

HOSTETTER'S CELEBRATED STOMACH BITTERS.

Against the vapors foul prepare,
That fever-taint the heavy air,
Drink not tainted the water found
In prairies, woods or marshy ground
If sedentary toil you ply,
Nature's own moist mental—apply
For when debarred from exercise
Or artificial aid she cries.
Medicine's grand purpose and intent
Is throughout evil to prevent
And if you'd be relieved or spared
From the ills that crush the unprepared,
Hostetter's Bitters use—for info
They are the surest ADVISER.

To act as defiance the miasma of unhealthy soils, the poison of unwholesome water, the effluvia of crowded work rooms and factories, and the baneful influence of sedentary employments, it is only necessary to be forearmed with

HOSTETTER'S CELEBRATED STOMACH BITTERS.

Dyspepsia's pangs, that rack and grind
The body, and distress the mind:
Agues, that as they go and come,
Make like a constant martyrdom;
Colics and dysentric pains,
Numb which the strong man's vigor wanes;
Bilious complaints, those tedious ills,
Never conquered yet by drastic pills;
Dread diarrhœas that will be
Cured by destructive mercury;
Slow constitutional decay
That brings death nearer, day by day;
Nervous prostration, mental gloom—
Heralds of madness or the tomb;
For these, though mineral nostrums fail—
Medes of Relief at least we hail,
Hostetter's Bitters—medicine sure,
Not to prevent, alone, but cure

In dyspepsia, fever and ague, bilious complaints, constitutional and nervous debility, constipation, sea-sickness, agueish, and in all complaints of Man or Woman, proceeding from casual or inherent weakness of the body, the one great remedy and restorative is

HOSTETTER'S CELEBRATED STOMACH BITTERS.

To wanderers on sea or land,
From Polar shore to Tropic strand;
To households lone, in regions new,
And dwellers in great cities, too;
To soldiers in camp, fort and field,
Who need against disease a shield;
To miners, Californiabound,
And tillers of wet, marshy ground,
To feeble wives of fragile mold,
To young and middle-aged, and old,
To all in health, who would enjoy
Heaven's best gifts without alloy,
To all the strengthless, weak and pale
Who droop, yet know not what they ail,
Hostetter's Bitters we present
As Health's most potent element

If there is any value in public opinion, or any weight in medical testimony, the very best and safest Tonic, Corrective and Alterative now before the world is HOSTETTER'S CELEBRATED STOMACH BITTERS.

Sold by respectable druggists in all parts of the world.

TURBINE

American Double Turbine Water Wheel

IS NOW MANUFACTURED BY THE OREGON IRON Works, in the city of Portland, and orders for the same can be filled immediately. We have a small supply of the different sizes, from 10 inches to 48 inches in diameter. That we may know the proper sized wheel you require, measure your water in the following way: Take the width of the stream, the average depth, and the distance it flows in a minute.

All the wheels now in use give universal satisfaction. Both the construction of the wheel and its performance, commend it to the better judgment of all minds capable of appreciating the highest development of mechanical construction. Therefore it has conquered the most violent opposition.

This wheel is especially adapted to mining purposes. It is light, and can be easily packed into the mountains. Wheels weighing from 100 to 300 pounds will yield from 10 to 40 horse power, under a head of 25 or 30 feet. They are the cheapest wheel to use up known, as they are so arranged as to produce the greatest power possible from the water used

The prices of these wheels have now been reduced to the ability of all. Come and see them or send for circular to
